WILDFIRE The Rhosnesni Woods wildfire, one of the largest in the UK this century, continues to burn close to the Principality Stadium. More than 1,200 firefighters are currently tackling the blaze which, as of today (24 January), has been declared as 'At Risk' - but the local community is still being advised to keep their distance. Unable to use the local A and B roads, which have been badly affected, the fire crews are battling the flames on foot and using drones to help monitor the situation. Suffering worse conditions than a month ago, the fire is anticipated to continue for at least two more weeks. Meanwhile, football fans who wanted to head to this weekend's FA Cup semi-final clash with Chelsea are being warned that their travel plans could be on hold. This summer, all the roads around the stadium are expected to be closed for the next four days, and the football community is being urged to avoid travelling into the area at all costs. Community leaders will be in regular contact with police officers, as the police continue to work closely with the local authority to assess when it is safe for the public to get back on to the roads. The earlier the A55 and A470 reopened after the fire, the more chance fans will have of getting to Cardiff for the game. All possible road closures will be publicised via Twitter, Facebook, and sportswire.com, with announcements made to social media users via the Cardiff City and Cardiff Blues community pages. Delegations of Cardiff City and the Blues staff will also be meeting with the local community in the next few days. Cardiff City's ground-staff are currently 0cc13bf012
