Real-life movement like running speed, acceleration and direction changes are captured and applied to the new “Movement Engine.” In addition to the gameplay changes being made, New “HyperMotion Technology” allows the game engine to collect data that makes the action appear to be more realistic.

Real-life player attributes like height, weight, stature and limb attributes like arms, legs and size of hands are taken into account when players move on-screen, thus increasing a sense of realism in-game. Using this data, players create their own movements and their on-screen actions are recreated closer to real life.

The new “Movement Engine” is one of many examples of improving realism in FIFA and the game’s battle royale mode. To learn more about FIFA 22, check out the press kit here. “HyperMotion Technology”, what it means and how it works: FIFA 22 introduces new “HyperMotion Technology” to the game. Using real-life player data, this technology brings unprecedented realism to gameplay. In this technology, a motion capture suit is worn by a player, and then data from them is input into the game. This data is then used to accelerate actions on-screen, creating realistic movement. Players using the technology are then able to move on-screen like they would in real life. This “HyperMotion” Technology is a major benefit of FIFA 22. Players with “HyperMotion” are able to do all the things they could in real life, like evading possession, intercepting passes and performing body swerves. Below is an example of how “HyperMotion” technology works. Players are wearing a motion capture suit and data is collected from them playing the way they would in real life. Below is an example of how “HyperMotion” technology is applied to one of the game’s story mode stages. In this game, data is collected from a real-life player and used to make on-screen movements appear more realistic. The game’s “HyperMotion” can be applied to Player Attributes. Player Attributes are not typically adjustable during gameplay but with “HyperMotion” technology adjustments are possible:

It is on the 18th - 22th of September So those of you that were hoping to play a half decent game of football will get the chance. Let us know what team you will be squadbing up against. Since the last patch, how many games does it take for you to have an expert rating of 59 for all five categories? Are you getting bonuses or should I have been getting bonuses? I need 59 in everything and played every game possible and never got it yet... I only play on VS CPU Is there a reason for the below average ratings on FIFA 22 Pro Clubs? Who is going to compete in the new 2K club competitions in FIFA 22? I didn't see any announcement. The Update is done and dusted. I played a game yesterday and tried out FIFA 2K20 demo. I remember of when I played FIFA 11 and I remember the excitement. but sadly this time it feels different. I played against CPU and it was just different compared to FIFA 22.

FIFA is the one and only official videogame of the beautiful game and is loved by millions of fans worldwide. Whether you are a football fanatic, fantasy football maniac or just like to watch matches live, FIFA is the videogame to be in! FIFA is about football! No dribbling, no passing, no bribing – just pure, intuitive control and management of the most beautiful game on earth. The great visuals and witty commentary, combined with an exciting ball-control system and the legendary Champions League, make FIFA the biggest and best football videogame ever! Play your way in FIFA and aim for victory! It takes more than scoring goals or collecting assists to win games in FIFA. With over 1000 skill moves and hundreds of team tactics at your disposal, you can now build your own style of play. Take on any opponent and become the best! THE TOP 25 PLAYERS IN THE WORLD – A NEW HIGHLIGHT FOR BIG PHYSICIANS. Players are rated on their achievements in FIFA, not how they perform in a particular game. The best player in the world is one who scores the most goals or controls the ball more often than his opponent. If you are a big physician or a football fanatic, you now have the opportunity to acquire information on each and every player.

“Who is the best player in the world?” becomes an easy question to answer. With a huge number of in-depth statistics and individual ratings available for each player in FIFA, you will be able to see how they compare to each other when all their records are taken into account. Your Team Each squad member has both his own ratings, player cards and formation. These can be used to set new parameters for your team. For example, it is possible to improve your defenders’ abilities, increase your midfield’s aggressiveness or make your striker more skilled. Your players can also be changed during a match – for example to give you a better balance. And don't forget your away team! There is a lot of emphasis placed on your team's overall appearance and general characteristics. For example, the team's shape and the number of players on the pitch are both subject to influence, as well as the style of play. This creates a wide variety of team options which can be used to exploit all opponents. System FIFA makes it easy to work with all sorts of different strategies and tactics
