This study examined whether activation of transient receptor potential vanilloid 4 (TRPV4) is involved in the induction of non-adrenergic, non-cholinergic (NANC) contraction in the rat lower urinary tract (LUT). The involvement of TRPV4 in NANC contraction was assessed using specific antagonists and by comparing the responses to the TRPV4 agonist GSK1016790A (GSK) in intact vs. muscarinic receptor antagonist (atropine) pretreated. The effect of GSK (15 ng/kg) on bladder pressure was also measured in conscious animals. Bladders from wild-type (WT) and TRPV4 knockout (TRPV4-/-) mice were used to demonstrate the importance of TRPV4 in NANC signalling in the rodent LUT. In response to injection of GSK, NANC contraction, measured by micturition contraction and increased frequency of micturition contractions (MCs), was similar in TRPV4-/- and WT mice. In other tissues, GSK

SummonerVR (alpha) Crack + With Serial Key

This is a virtual reality stealth experience developed with the Oculus Rift, the HTC Vive, the Samsung Gear VR and the Google Daydream, first playable on Google's Daydream headset and phones. The Asymmetric-VR-Stealth-Party game is a sequel to our previous VR game, Asymmetric-VR-Corridor-Punch-Party, which launched on Steam last month. Asymmetric VR: Stealth Party was developed by Eagle Play VR and is the first VR game to use the Samsung Gear VR's software which was released back in December 2016. It was made with Unity. About Eagle Play VR: Eagle Play VR is made up of a team of experienced developers, who have released several other games to Steam. Eagle Play VR is built on the Unity Engine and utilises Steamworks for multiplayer co-op on up to 4 users. Eagle Play VR aims to bring VR games to you in a way that feels more personal than your traditional experience on the web. Join our in game Discord server for discussions! I've been playing this game for a while. It's very good for multiplayer co-op, especially with an Oculus rift, but it doesn't have any general feeling of presence which really makes it feel like a real VR experience. I think that some improvements can be made to increase presence. If you are a fan of the graphics and physics of Spelunky, you should be a fan of this game. The premise is simple. One is a miner robot and the other is an explorer robot. You can pick up items and discover new things. To progress through levels you need to use your exploration to overcome hazards placed by the robot. But beware, there are also traps. The risk is often worth the reward, but usually is only in the first few levels. If you keep exploring and die, you'll just want to try again. Every new level unlocks new blocks and areas to explore, and will gradually reveal where the greatest treasures are. This is one of the best platformer games for VR currently. The design is simple and clean, with a very nice use of physics, with no extra objects, nor hanging parts, so it just feels natural to play. The realistic physics gives you a sense of immersion, and the backtracking mechanic is very fun. The graphics and sound are also very good, and really make the game feel like a seamless experience, and the c9d1549cdd

for wine lovers: Binswang - near Tainan Last weekend was the first time since two years I managed to travel away from Taiwan, and I must admit I made a little mistake: forgot to pack my wok. Fortunately the day before my flight I discovered an old wok on the street in Mery Land in Taichung, simply had to buy it but where could I actually throw the stuff without cooking? Luckily I found the perfect solution: a small, retro restaurant with a small terrasse located about 25 minutes north of Tainan in Binswang, an old trading town, known to be a great place for shopping and tourism. Yes, Binswang is a little hidden place compared to other tourist destinations in Taiwan, but who cares, its actually my kind of place. Our first meal was at the Har Gow Restaurant: A restaurant located next to the construction site of the Vatutay Small Silk Industry Park, it's a cozy place to enjoy an evening with good food and drink. We shared a Kaiser Kuih, a great dessert and my favourite dessert if you are a fan of cheese or chocolate desserts. The Kaiser Kuih is essentially "drunk" tea, and inside there is meringue with some cheese, fruits and cocoa. The attractive banana leaves where wrapped and steamed covered with the meringue and the cheese. At a later visit we tried to order a different dessert, but it turned out this one was the lady's version, and probably it suited us better. The Har Gow Restaurant recommended by our guide for the B&B was associated with the Kiok Hang restaurant/cake workshop next door, and at the time their website was not online. Let's note the Kiok Hang is no longer open but somehow I can't imagine an awesome wine bar in a historic Chinese shop with Japanese tea pots in a historic shophouse in Taiwan. At least the situation in Vatutay is more like an English village. Our second dinner was at the Binswang Night Market, a few of my friends mentioned that was a nice spot for traditional Taiwanese food. It's located on the old Binswang Road next to the Ming Yi Fried Chicken Restaurant, Wangweiguan, an old themed night market. We walked into the closed Chikashuhang restaurant and right there we where confronted by a young Taiwanese couple, talking on a table, contemplating two glasses of light wine. We ordered a tray of deep fried Noodle
