Abandon Ship is a retro Future of the West inspired Shooter in which you control a team of sea pirates who embark on a sea voyage and pillage trade and cargo ships. You must head out into the seas to kill Sea Monsters, loot the trade ships and hunt for treasure and gold. During your adventures you will face challenges, sea monsters, a baron who will want to arrest you and others whom you will have to escape from to survive. Time to fire on anyone who dares travel past our beautiful island! It has been discovered, we have a new home and that can't sit here. The almighty Kraken has left his lair and is heading out to sea! Our meteorite detector gave us the first sighting yesterday. We need to stop this before the monster spots our shore. Every time a ship goes by, our island will appear to the Kraken. Only when it goes off-screen will it vanish again. It is up to us to keep the monster at bay. We need to destroy any ships we can in order to give our team the advantage in the open seas. With the discovery of our new home, the team had to decide which island they were going to reside on. Should we set up our camp on the Haunted Seas, or should we go along the coast of the Village by the Crocodile Pit? The team went along the river because it would be near a good drinking water source, and also because they were told that it was an ancient path of doom. The team went inland towards the Crocodile Pit, where the treasure was rumored to be at. Perfect first time enjoyment. I wonder which pointers I gave you that are missing though I think you already understand them. For instance, you solved all the puzzles just by "looking around" in this genre of game and the challenges are interesting. Locks have a magical atmosphere and I think I enjoyed the environment. The attacks for some physical puzzles were actually more interesting to learn than the actual game mechanics.

There are quite some minor bugs in the game, but that is true of the first game after all. Keep at it.

Final thoughts

So regarding the story: overall it doesn't tell anything. The dialogues are not very natural. You don't meet anyone and there are only very few dialogues in the game.

Regarding the game mechanics: the only problem is that this kind of game needs to have physical puzzles. You require a lot of player interaction to solve the easy puzzles and that is pretty boring. Add a combat mode for the puzzles and unlock all areas also and you'll make the game more interesting and enjoyable.

Overall: excellent game. I enjoyed watching the different interpretations of the content.
