analyzer dogle 4ba26513c0Â .My name is J.D. Roth. I started Patriots 4 Life in 2007 shortly after my now-wife, Donna, and I got married. We had four kids within the first four years of marriage, which was quite the experience. Prior to our kids, I was in the Electronic Residual Income (i.e. passive income) space with several different online businesses. I eventually “retired” from that space to become a stay-at-home-dad. However, in 2007, we were only starting to have our first child. We knew that we needed to build a financial foundation that would enable us to provide a good life for our children, even if we weren’t making money at the time. We opened a traditional IRA that year and started contributing (plus borrowed from the bank) to reduce our tax liability as early as possible. We were lucky in the fact that we were building wealth without much income. Because we were having lots of children, we had even more money coming in. In fact, our household income grew rapidly over the first few years of building our “family business.” This is in stark contrast to the financial advice that I see currently being touted by financial planners. If you’re making the same amount of money every year, then of course you’re going to have high net worth. On the flip side, as I mentioned in a recent article
