FIFA 22 HyperMotion Technology for Player Behaviour Players now react appropriately to the situation they find themselves in when engaging with their opponents, creating more unpredictable and authentic on-field movement. Take a look at the example below and how FIFA 22 player movements look like in comparison to their real-life on-field counterparts: The animations and physics of player movement adapt to the real-life player's physical shape and form, helping to make the on-field action more realistic and responsive, as well as more varied and chaotic, allowing for more, realistic and believable player interactions. FIFA 22 also introduces Pass Too Early animation logic, which enables players to delay the transfer of the ball to a specific player. The animation logic offers more realistic and unpredictable movements on the pitch.
