Macha Loop Trail The Macha Loop Trail () is a hiking trail in Wannsee, Germany. At, it is the second longest hiking trail in Berlin after the Heiligensee Trail. It is named after the nearby village of Macha. It is part of the Berlin-Wannsee Landscape. History The trail was created in 1997 in order to preserve the green space of the Wannsee, on the site of an old gravel pit. First laid out by Goethe in his 1774 poem Wanderbüchlein, the gravel pit was in 1795 converted into the Wannsee sports field. The reforested Wannsee used to be a popular gathering place for nature lovers until the 1930s. After the Berlin Wall fell in 1989 the terrain was reclaimed by nature, but Wannsee lost some of its charm. The old Wannseestrasse, which was used by visitors to Wannsee to board tramways which were abandoned in the early 1970s, was also removed and the area was turned into a parking lot. As of 2010, the Macha Loop Trail covered. It is part of the Wannsee Landscape project, which aims at making Wannsee (including the nearby villages of Moabit, Westend and Potsdam) into a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Trail The trail is home to many species of wildlife. As of 2010 the Macha Loop is a haven for wildlife, especially birds. The German parrot fern is reportedly spread along the trail and it has become a popular nesting site. At the beginning of the trail is an artificial wildflower meadow which attracts butterflies and grassland birds. The meadow can be found next to the, which has a Saxon hunting lodge. The trail begins at the end of Taubenstiehlstraße, in a forested area to the left of Bahnhof Wannsee. The first of the trail are separated from the rest of the path by an tall fence. A ramp on the fence allows access from the Taubenstiehlstraße to the rest of the trail. It continues through an area with artificial plants, and then traverses a pine forest and a wetland. At the end of this forest is a large lake in the form of a "V", which was created by the edge of the gravel pit. The northern edge of the lake is separated

Maximaq was a river merchant for years, trading with distant lands for his family. But one day he met another boatmaster, who mentioned a world lying far to the north where he never went, a world calling to be discovered. Together with this new friend, Maximaq continued south, and the last days of the year they met up with a ship that was returning to the north. They entered the land of Nagadova, and while Maximaq was trading his goods, the boatmaster set up his camp for the winter. Maximaq never returned, leaving his friend behind alone in Nagadova. A couple of weeks later the boatmaster disappeared, leaving behind no trace of his camp or goods. Maximaq stayed behind, pondering the fate of his friend and the fickle world of the North. Finally, unable to dwell in his grief any longer, he ventured into the wastes to find his friend, the first step in a quest to do the world good and help others.
